Comelec bares plot to disrupt elections

Aim is to discredit electoral process, results

By Kristine L. Alano and Marlon Rances

THE COMMISSION ON Elections (Comelec) yesterday warned against a supposed plan by some groups and individuals to discredit the historic May 10 voting and sow doubts on the integrity of the automated election process and its results.

Comelec officials said at a press briefing the alleged plan called for creating chaos in polling precincts by delaying the voting in stamp areas and that they had a list of the names of people involved in the planned operation.

Asked if the names on the list included those of supporters of presidential candidates, Comelec spokesperson James Jimenez said: "These are [among] the groups we are looking at, certainly... the politicians."

The Commission did not divulge the names on the supposed list.

RP militias on int'l list of 'predators of the press'

PARIS—MEDIA WATCHDOG Reporters Without Borders (RSF) on Monday named the world's 40 worst "predators of the press," including politicians, religious leaders and Philippine militias, to mark World Press Freedom Day.

"They are powerful, dangerous, violent and abuse the law," said the Paris-based RSF. "These predators of press freedom have the power to censor, imprison, kidnap, torture and, in the worst cases, murder journalists."

Seventeen presidents and several heads of government are on the list, including China's Hu Jintao, Iran's Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, Russia's (late) Vladimir Putin and the Philippines' Gloria Macapagal Arroyo.

The Taliban leaders, "whose influence extends to Pakistan as well as Afghanistan, has joined the list."

RAVAGED, ABRA—SOME 1,000 PNP officers, as well as a third of the entire police force of the Cordillera, have been deployed in Abra to defuse the rising political tensions following outbreaks of violence in the run-up to the

"The center of gravity has shifted [to Abra]," Chief Supt. Villamor Buncagang, Cordillera police director, said on Monday.

Apert from at least 800 policemen assigned there, Buncagang said more than 200 more were arriving today to help secure the distribution of the

I want to finish my plans for the poor

(With a special)

ON A HUMID NIGHT in Taguig City, where the earlier daytime temperatures reportedly hit a sweltering 39 degrees Celsius, a crowd of around 5,000 came to see him and didn't seem to mind the heat building up inside the Cagayan Sports Complex.

At 75 and even with a dewy, former President Joseph Estrada could still make multitudes hang on to his every word—whether it leads to a happy one or what he maintained to be his "sacred" matter and conviction for the day, or to one of his so-called "visions."

That night, he didn't come alone. He brought with him his wife, who told me, "I'm with you, Joseph. You didn't study your studies, you didn't study your presidency. Now, even your (last) mission, you didn't finish."

The audience composed mostly of farmers, workers and students tapped it all up, their lower laughter moving into cheers and chants of "Tong! Tong! Tong!"

But after delivering the punch line to his effect, Estrada shifted moods and made the following through in all earnest: "Still as I promised here that time that I will finish the program that I started for the Filipino masses."

The scene had become a hall mark of almost every Estrada sortie since the former multi-awarded actor embarked on what could be his stunner so-

AFP, PNP vow to protect polls

THE CHIEFS OF THE ARMED FORCES OF THE Philippines (AFP) and the Philippine National Police (PNP) yesterday vowed to prevent any attempt to delay the May 10 balloting.

At the 74. Day of Prayer for Hope and Healing, "one thing is certain: we need to be united," says U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft. U.S. Chief of Staff George Stephanopoulos told the 100,000-strong military congregation who ready to join any attempt to manipulate the results of the elections just weeks and called the AFP to "always be on the side of what is right and what is just."

For his part, AFP Director General John Larson, after talking with Rangel, a leader in the movement to influence the people's vote, said, "This lighting of the candle is indeed a reminder of our deep and binding resolve to... maintain peace and unity in this crucial period of our history."

Imelda told me they have $1 trillion—Abcede

By Tera Quiambao

PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION on Good Government (PCGG) Commissioner Ricardo Abcede yesterday denied the widow of the late Senator purchased Maricopa had sold less than $1 billion to the family but $1 billion in its account in New York.

Abcede said this meant in its account over $200 million and 40% television yesterday, discrediting his decision to pursue a settlement with the Marcoses to recover an estimated P140 billion lost in Philippine wealth, and up to more $200 million against Marcos and his cronies.

"How much really is their wealth? During our dinner, I said: 'Maricopa, this is what the people are saying.'"

"Without thinking too much, she told me, 'Commissioner Abcede, in 2008, the Marcos family alone, the Marcos family, $1 billion,'" Abcede said. 40% more in a later interview.

"Now I don't believe her and I don't know. Because on the one hand, she's saying she lost $200 million in the family, but her $1 billion wealth," said Abcede.

Gregorio Paolo Chaves, who is based at the time the PCGG was created during the Aquino administration, said he didn't believe it. "It's more likely to be $1 billion," he said. He said the Marcos family in 1993 was worth $1.6 billion.

The income used to call Abcede several times yesterday but the commissioner could not be reached.

Abcede's son, Francisco "Bong" Marcos Jr., however, has said the report that his family was working on a settlement with the PCGG was "misleading."

"We did not talk to [Abcede]. I hardly know this person. I did not sign anything—at my mother's, my sister's or any member of the family," the young Marcos, a senatorial candidate, told the Inquirer while campaigning in Naga City on Sunday.

He said it was possible that his brother-in-law, Gregorio "Greggy" Abcede, was "in on" the deal but not with Abcede.

What possible any young man doing something like this? Maybe they say that this is as he could say a lot," Abcede said, referring to Abcede.

In an earlier statement, Abcede, the husband of Gregorio's younger sister Inez, said Abcede was the one who had sought a meeting through a mutual friend. He said there was no discussion of a deal during that meeting, which he thought was a "social call."

"This is just politicking...they are trying to avoid my candidacy," Gregorio Abcede said, noting that the "140 billion" was involved in the settlement of the campaign.

The PCGG is tasked to recover the wealth amassed by Marcos and his cronies and they were based out of power by a "people power revolution" in 1986. In response to petition Secretary Chaves, the Supreme Court nullified a 1993 court deal between the PCGG and the Marcoses. The deal would have seen the clearing of the case against the Marcoses in exchange for a 75-25 split of the family's assets.

But Abcede yesterday justified another attempt to keep a settlement, saying "this will be good for the country and for our people." He said it would lead to "not only 75-25 (split) rights" but also a "peace from Corason to the last, a quiet Northern Luzon."

Make court submit evidence, SC urged

By Dana Padilla

HUBERT WELB, THE CONVICTED MINORAL accused in the Vizconde rape-slay case, has asked the Supreme Court to compel a lower court to turn over a crucial piece of forensic evidence for DNA testing.

WELB, through his lawyer Desemio Guevarra, said the Pampanga Regional Trial Court Branch 274 should be ordered to turn over a crucial piece of forensic evidence for DNA testing.

The trial court in Manila ruled last week that the specimen was no longer in its custody.

Guevarra filed the petition af-

The Presidential Commission on Good Government (PCGG) is reportedly going to launch an audit to monitor what is known as the "do-nothing" of the President's family.

In this audit, members of the "do-nothing" of the President's family will be audited.

The PCGG has been the auditing arm of all presidents or their main aides since the time of Cory Aquino.

If a president was honest, like Cory was, then the money stolen by the PCGG from the government would be the top priority of his/her administration.

RP to secure P5.5-B loan from Japan agency

Gov't to fund public works, repair of damaged property

By Michael V. Sison

THE PHILIPPINES IS SET TO borrow nearly P5 billion (P9.4 billion yen) from a Japanese developmental institution to fund key public works and rehabilitate structures that have been damaged in last year's storm.

The Budget Office of the Philippines already has given the government the go-ahead to borrow from the Japanese International Development Agency (JIDA), which earlier agreed to assist the Philippines in its rebuilding efforts.

The central bank's Monetary Board last Thursday approved the government plan to borrow the loan from JIDA, said ROP Governor Leonardo Ordoñez Jr.

The ROP said the loan was an emergency call to the extent of damage caused by Tropical Storm "Ondoy" in September and Typhoon "Bopha" in October. The second loan also funded the repair of the loan facilities, Ordoñez said.

The loan will carry a 0.51 percent interest rate and is payable in 40 years. The Department of Public Works and Highways will serve as implementing agency of projects to be financed by the loan.

Infrastructure work will be undertaken in Metro Manila and the country's northern provinces, Ordoñez said by the end of the month. Officials earlier said work that would include the building and repairing of bridges, roads, and other damaged roads and bridges, and possible reconstruction of new ones.

The JIDA loan is just one of the financial assistance packages to be received by the Philippine government in an effort to rebuild structures that were lost, and lives that were taken, by the storm.

The World Bank earlier estimated that reconstruction would reach P300 million.

The intention, which President Benigno Aquino III said, was the most of disaster.

BOP expected at a surplus of $4B this year

THE PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT EXPECTS A $4 billion surplus in its balance of payments this year due to inflows of foreign remittances from overseas workers, confidence on the stock of a global economic recovery, according to Morgan Stanley projections.

However, the expected BOP surplus may be lower than the $5.3 billion registered in 2009. The international investment bank and foreign capital inflows could be offset by an increase in imports, which could also pick up given the improvement in domestic incomes.

A $4.4 billion surplus in the BOP is estimated to be equivalent to 2.7 percent of the country's gross domestic product (GDP) for this year.

Last year, the BOP also posted a surplus equivalent to 3.2 percent of GDP. BOP is the difference between the inflows and outflows of foreign currencies. A surplus in the BOP results in adding the country's gross international reserves, the total foreign currency holdings of a country, which determines its ability to engage in commercial transactions with the rest of the world, such as the purchase of imported goods and services and debt denominated in foreign currencies.

In its latest paper on the Philippine economy, "PDP: Staying in the Middle of the Pack," Morgan Stanley said accelerating inflation, which would cause imported goods to rise, together with a rise in demand, would increase dollar outflows thereby limiting the surplus in the BOP.

The bank's monthly data indicate that as the trade balance slowly began to deteriorate again, owing to rising commodity prices and the pick-up in general import demand, "Morgan Stanley said in its paper.

The investment bank said the estimated BOP surplus for this year would help the peso to reach the level of 45.5 against the US dollar by the end of the year.

But Morgan Stanley said the peso's performance on the peso this year, which broke into the 44-to-45 dollar territory in April, would

GLOBE ACHIEVES MEF 9 CERTIFICATION FOR ITS CARRIER ETHERNET SERVICES

In the habit of being world-class

A growing number of industries and companies find themselves in need of network connections that are able to stream information - data, voice or video - and in many cases, all of these at once. In addition, such connections must also be extremely reliable, highly-quality, easy to manage, and scalable. Globe Business Carrier Ethernet offerings are equipped to fit these needs.

Since 2000, Globe has been offering a comprehensive range of enterprise solutions that include Carrier Ethernet services. These services are delivered through Globe's industry-leading, ultra-high-speed OAK (Stratified Access Service) network and its 470 ECOM (E-Managed Optical Network) nodes or POPs (points of presence). Globe ECOM is the Philippines' first and only pure MPLS (Internet Protocol - Multi Protocol Label Switching) network.

After exhaustive testing, the Metro Ethernet Forum (MEF) recently determined that the Globe Ethernet offerings of Globe - the E-Line (Ethernet Private Line), E-VPN (Ethernet Virtual Private Line), and E-LAN (Ethernet Local Area Network) services conform to its rigorous MEF 9 standards - a first in the Philippine telecommunications industry.

The MEF 9 precise and detailed technical specifications are used as bases for certifying companies that produce or offer Carrier Ethernet services. Globe Business is one of only ten MEF 9-certified service providers in the Asia-Pacific region. This assures clients of the high quality and interoperability of Globe Ethernet services with those of other notable certified service providers.

The MEF is the leading body for Carrier Ethernet worldwide. It's a non-profit global industry alliance of 180 of the world's top service providers and major equipment vendors. The MEF is an organization that is devoted to the advancement and adoption of Carrier Ethernet services.

and networks all over the world. The MEF is the leading body for Carrier Ethernet worldwide. It's a non-profit global industry alliance of 180 of the world's top service providers and major equipment vendors. The MEF is an organization that is devoted to the advancement and adoption of Carrier Ethernet services and networks all over the world.

Network performance improvement

Enterprise clients that adopt Globe Business MEF 9-certified Ethernet services can experience marked improvements in the performance of their networks. Companies such as call centers whose round-the-clock operations are dependent on high-quality, low-maintenance and always-on network connections can stand to benefit significantly from having world-class Ethernet connections.

Globe Ethernet services can automatically deal with network incidents without affecting end-user experience. They can meet existing reliability requirements by being able to detect and resolve problems rapidly - as quickly as 50 milliseconds - a significant upgrade for clients who demand uninterrupted network connections.

Multiple services are also consolidated over a single network that's more than capable of handling varied requirements. In addition, these solutions allow clients to obtain more bandwidth incrementally and on demand.

Because of its simplicity and cost-efficiency, the adoption of Globe Ethernet can in turn help provide clients a competitive edge by improving their time-to-market as it minimizes resource requirements and boosts the speed and efficiency of company operations.

Globe Ethernet Services are provisioned using a purpose-built data network specifically tailored to corporate data services such as MPLS, MPLS, Fast-Gig SD-WAN and DWDM. This data network is now supported by 10G links for even greater capacity and scalability.

How squash helps celebrities relieve stress and burn calories

By Margie C. Enriquez
 Contributor

FIVE YEARS AGO, after giving birth to her youngest son, model-turned-entrepreneur Jennie de Leon Gonzalez was hit by post-partum blues. Would she ever lose weight and get back into her model figure? She discovered squash, a racket sport played by non-players in the confines of four walls.

Parting as much as 1,000 calories per hour, she shed off 35 lbs in six months. Today, she is a Class II player in the club level who has joined the National Open.

More than a workout, squash has become her advocacy, as board member of the Squash Rackets Association of the Philippines, she has been tasked to organize the annual Celebrity Squash Tournament. This year, it will be held on May 15 at the Iloilo Country Club with its coaching professional as guest proponent.

"The idea is to promote the sport—make it mainstream for the kids and to get back the former players who shifted to basketball or running," says Gonzalez. People are intimidated by the sport because the courts are only found in exclusive clubs. Hence, the association's goal is to build more squash courts and to make it more accessible to the public.

The "volunteer" team: Jennie is Gonzalez's brain child. She tapped such class A players as ex-champion GE Evaristo, another tennis, tennis and sportsman Eric Lopez, Bobby Buchanan, Mariah Imani of Sports Philippines, past athlete Ernie Adalgisa, veteran singer Parlor Ramos-Diaz and friends from the fashion world such as Apple Abella, Grace Molina, Pherrisa Ibarra, Angel Jacub, Sam DeCicca, Steve Arizal, actress Robbie Concepcion and makeup artist Patrick Bana. DESIGNER Parlor Ramos-Diaz encourages her son to take up the sport to build his discipline.

giving a good lay. Gonzalez is a South Sea pro for her skills.

Discipline

Squash is known for its self-discipline, of movement, making steps and ability of direction. This is because the player and opponent vie for the same ground and target, which is the front wall. The size of the game is to move points by subduing the opponent from winning your shot before the ball bounces twice. For her career, Gonzalez will put a good amount of pressure on the bones and muscles, that will consequently build her muscles in strength.

from former Nike Park, Sports, Head and Fitness.

With her modeling connections, she was able to get Paul of F. Fung and South Island which she is an endorser in her major sponsors. Now in her third year, the celebrity tournament has been attracting people to look into the sport.

The player is the most appreciated prize, though everyone promote goggles. I stepped back for three weeks," she recalls.

Nonetheless, she has been dedicated in the sport, working out before work for her fitness. For cross-training, she gets into running and yoga.

Fashion Designer Parlor Ramos-Diaz has been playing since childhood. The Manila Club became her second home as she ended in the squash courts all day. She swears to be training with the junior national team.

"I work for long hours. A game of squash is a way of decompressing and relieving stress," says Diaz.

Multi-Sport and that has been encouraging her children to take up squash.

"They will tolerate discipline which is required to excel in a sport. It also keeps them away from bad habits when they grow up," says Gonzalez.

Other kids: "They pick up rules and learn to compete with themselves when they try to get better at something. I will try to keep them [my] push when they get older. Girls like to play squash more than boys."

Keep it play

Coach Edgar Ballester says squash provides cardiovascular workout more significantly than other racket sports. "The overall eight hours," he says.

In one hour of squash, a player burns more calories because the court is bigger than a badminton court and therefore, requires more running. It also provides a good sport and have a body workout by using legs. He tips to starting around the court and the arms and torso to using the racket.

Ballester adds: "It's easy to play if you can hit the ball, you can play alone and the walling. Unlike in tennis or badminton where you need a partner, here you can practice by yourself—use ball, one racket. You can play solo or alone because the court is covered."

Even for girls, Ballester also enjoys the sport. "It builds endurance as you make a hit. You work on the legs. It's more fun than running or being on a treadmill."

Grace Molina, a veteran of flag football, volleyball and basketball, enjoys squash for the speed of the game, and it keeps her active. Both girls enjoy the thrill of hitting the ball that can rebound from any wall within the boundaries.

"Good players have good strokes, strong arms and wrist action. Aside from the skills, they are agile," says Ballester. He says Gonzalez is fit and fast inside the court.

"In games, she makes points in the deep shots and she has strong ground strokes." He commends Diaz for her correct technique and strong strokes, notes Pherrisa Ramos-Diaz for the good form and Parlor for the strong form.

Celebrity doctor Mike Ibarra is another squash aficionado. "She's got power, with her strong arms and she's very quick in coming after the ball," says Ballester.

Ballester recommends badminton as the cross-training sport since it also requires different strokes and similar strokes. "The power comes from the arms. The action is a good in both badminton or squash. You can also learn to improve your volley."
